STOLEN KEG LANDS

TWO BEFORE COURT

Two Belgians and German Youth Engaged in Brawl on South River Street Last Night.

This is the story of the missing
keg of beer.
Three weeks ago two Belgians,
reading about a gain of the allies
over the enemy, decided to honor the occasion in a manner fitting to their minds. They ordered the keg and while waiting for their share, read the vivid accounts of the fighting of the brave soldiers of King Albert. Then they went back to tap the beer.

They looked with fond anticipation at the spot they left the keg and looked again. It was gone. They looked at one another and wondered if they did not have a vision such as one, and the result was there was a merry slugfest and all three of the combatants were ejected with more force than grace from the saloon.

The argument continued on the street
until Patrolman Dickenson pulled the three into sight of the trouble zone.
Maybe it was because the suspect is part German that added to their fury,
but the Belgians were not slow in denouncing the German youth for the loss of the keg with something stronger than words. The young man in question was John Carroll.

Patrolman Dickenson started to take Carroll into custody and one Belgian, Lawrence Van Gelta, and the other foreigner, Mess, followed his companion to the city hall and, it is said, made a scene. The police, it is said, caused him to be locked up also. It appears that Mess was far from being the referee of the encounter, or peacemaker, even though less intoxicated
than the other men, and made a
"mess" of the affair.

This morning the two Belgians pleaded not guilty to being drunk and disorderly. Carroll admitted his guilt on this charge. The court attempted to learn who started and what caused the brawl, and both belgians refused to answer to make the court finally found out that the cause of the trouble was the missing
keg of beer, and Carroll denied stealing the keg.

"Was it empty?" asked Judge Max-
field.

"No, yer honor," both Belgians replied with grins on their faces.
"Well, if the keg was full and had not been stolen you would have been full" and the keg empty," remarked
the magistrate.

In dismissing the case against the two Belgians, Judge Maxwell used the time-worn saying, "If you want to fight, go to Europe," and Van Gelta
"came back" with the remark, "Ya, dere's too many Belgians getting killed already."

Carroll did not fare as well and was given a choice of a seven dollar fine or fifteen days in jail. He took the fifteen days.

The police were called last night to a South River street home to keep peace between a mother and daughter;
whom the authorities declare never stop arguing from daybreak to sundown, and from sundown to daybreak when together. The mother was taken to the station but later released
on promises to prevent further trouble.

Lenore Ulrich in "Kilmeny" Tonight.
Imagine with what delight a woodland sprite of a girl who has grown up all her life with gnomes, fairies and pushing the "on and off" buttons of an electric light switch in a city mansion when she saw it for the first time
at the age of sixteen.
With spirited Lenore Ulrich to play
this part this becomes one of the many delicious comedy scenes in her first film starring vehicle, "Kilmeny." The scenario of the gnomes will be presented on the Paramount program at the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company at the Apollo tonight for two shows.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Myers Theatre is now equipped with a new motion picture screen which makes the pictures much clearer and steadier. The new class of picture programs that are being offered should make the Myers a very popular place.
The excellent playing of the violin artist Miss Milch is attracting wide attention and many people come nightly to hear her. Miss Milch is ably assisted by Mrs. Rich at the piano.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Opportunity to See the Renowned Henry Walthall Tonight.

In portraying the deepest feelings of the human heart Mr. Walthall is now considered to be supreme. Parts that are too difficult for the ordinary actor to handle are the ones that give him an opportunity to show his powers. But to appreciate what the man can do, it is not necessary to pay a dollar or so to see him in the picture that has recently brought him so very prominently into the public eye. His work is equally as impressive in such pictures as we have tonight, the three-act drama "Temper." The author, H. S. Sheldon, gives Walthall a character to delineate such as few actors could do justice to. A fine, lovable youth who has to struggle with an unfortunate heritage, carried by a series of events through the tumult of human emotions. Miss Varda Howard plays the part of the boy's sympathetic mother, and Miss Ruth Stonehouse, the beautiful girl whose love
is everything to him.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"The Fixer" George Kleine's latest
five-part comedy billed as the attraction at Myers theatre tonight, is said to be one of those gems of humor as good as it is amusing. The story features Bickel and Watson, the famous team of comedians who did so much to put the Ziegfeld "Follies" shows on the theatrical map.

The plot is founded on Willis M.
Goodhue's celebrated stage farce
"Hello Bill." Bill Fowler, who is about to be married, calls in his friends for a bachelor dinner. Along toward the end of the festivities the more or less wine saturated sympatizers are interrupted in a pleasant game of dice (made with sugar lumps) by the local constable. This dignitary lands the party in the local calaboose and a hurried call is sent for Bill's friend Christopher Cutting.

"The Fixer" By means of a chloroform-soaked rag the party escapes
and Bill arrives in time for his wedding. Unfortunately the chloroform wears off and Zack, the constable,
gives chase.
Meanwhile William Fowler, Esq., a diplomat and namesake of the operative bridegroom is preparing for a dangerous mission to Mexico. Bill promptly steals the identity of the diplomat and when the constable arrives, informs his bride that this is a special envoy from the president come to escort him to Mexico. Once again the fixer fixes it and this time without any harm. As one of the festive er, the pair now consider the effect of returning home so soon. They decide to go to Mexico and send letters from Laredo. This they do until some time has elapsed when they return home in grand state. They are met by the entire town which hails them as heroes. All this goes very well until the real Wm. Fowler turns up when all sorts of funny complications set in.

But, unhappily for truth and righteousness, it all ends very pleasantly for the bride and her bride. Only the Fixer was forgotten and he gets what all good fixers get—nothing.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Mutt and Jeff in College.
"Laugh and the world laughs with you," "Weep and you weep alone," the lines of this immortal poem were never better illustrated than in the new comedy, "Mutt and Jeff in College," which is too be the next attraction at Myers Theatre, Monday, October 4th.
The new production, which is the latest of the Myers' "off" series, and which is bound to become more popular and profitable than any of its predecessors, is sponsored as usual by Manager Gus Hill who was the first to see the wonderful possibilities of transferring the cartoons to the stage. Mr. Hill with his noted business and managerial acumen, has gathered one of the best companies and local followers of all that is good in theatricals may be sure of a welling a performance up to the standard of excellence demanded by Broadway attractions. The cast is composed of thirty clever people who have been engaged for their respective abilities as artists, singers, funmakers and gloom destroyers. The comedy which scintillates with genuine novelties,

original situations wholesome mirth,
features that are out of the beaten path and an elaborate scenic and electrical adornment, is in two acts and three scenes. It contains exclusive musical numbers written especially for the piece which is described as being ebullient of incessant laughter, hilarity and action. If you have enjoyed the previous stage exploits of the "Long and the short of it," Mutt & Jeff have been commonly paraphrased the forthcoming contribution is sure to tickle your risibilities and make you feel that life is certainly sweet and worth living.

LIVESTOCK MARKET
CONTINUES STEADY

Cattle Have Active Demand With
Steers Selling Up to $10.40.—
Hog Receipts Heavier.

[By Associated Press.]
Chicago, Sept. 28.—There was an active demand for cattle on today's market with Texas steers selling up to $10.40. Receipts were fairly large at 18,000 head. Receipts were also much heavier than Tuesday's, 25,000, but demand was even, although the average was about five cents lower than yesterday. Sheep were also in good demand with lambs at $9.25, the record price for September. Following is the market summary:

Tuesday's Market.
Chicago, Sept. 28.—The general tendency of live stock values was higher, with trade in healthy condition in all branches.

Best yearling cattle on sale realized
$13.35, top hogs made $5.45 and choice
western lambs $9.25.

Average price of swine $7.74, or within 8c of high day of year in May and $1.29 above August 19, low day of year.

Poor quality, dwindling receipts and higher prices for fresh cuts and future deliveries of provisions were strengthening features in the hog trade.

Average price of hogs at Chicago
was $7.74, against $7.69 Monday, $7.06
a week ago, $3.44 a year ago, $8.60
two years ago and $8.65 three years ago.

"Good news travels fast," and the many bad back sufferers in Janesville are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy.
Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. L. W. Morse, 206 Park St., Janesville, says: "I had severe attacks of backache and pains across my loins. My kidneys didn't act regularly. Headaches made me miserable. It didn't take Doan's Kidney Pills long to make me feel stronger and better in every way. They regulated the action of my kidneys and put a stop to all the pains."

ALEXANDER IS HOPE OF QUAKERS TO WIN THE WORLD'S SERIES

Would Pitch Every Day for Moran (Against Red Sox if Necessary to Cop the Big Honor.)

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—In 1905 Christopher Mathewson hurled three games against the Philadelphia Athletics in the world's series. Matty did not give a run and won his three games. The Athletics won the series and the Giants conquered the American league pennant winners. Matty's feat has never been duplicated, but one is ready to surpass this marvelous curving performance.

Grover Cleveland Alexander is ready to pitch every day for the Phillies against the Boston Red Sox. And Grover Cleveland makes just one request: "Give me one run in each game, give me some tight fielding and we'll win four games."

Grover Cleveland Alexander! That's the name that stands between the Boston Red Sox and the 1916 world championship. Juggle all pieces of baseball dope; compare batting and fielding and the race isn't close—the Sox show a decided advantage for the Red Sox against the Quakers. But Grover Cleveland Alexander, this pitching machinery of 6 feet 1 inch, weighing 187 pounds, is the "hope" of the National league.

Some may believe Alex is all full of himself; that he considers himself the peer of them all—a Matty, Walsh, Combs, Bender, Plank, McGinnity, Alcock, Brown, Overall, Reulbach, Leonard and Adams in one. But he isn't the master of the field. Alex is not that sort.

Then Alexander was asked if he could stand the strain, if his wonderful right arm could go to the hit every day and he said: "Yes—I will. But that question is not up to me. Manager Moran will run the team and I'll be prepared to answer his call. If Pat and the boys think I will pitch every third game until we clinch the flag, I will and I will be strong enough to hold up my end."

Although Alex has won thirty games this season, he does not win the pennant for the Phils. He does not win the individual star of the team, but for the Phils and he will not say that he will win the world's championship. "That's what makes him a great pitcher."

I will be able to pitch every game in the series if I am called upon. I am not overworked today. They say I have pitched 360 innings. I can't verify this, but I will pitch every third game until we clinch the flag.

"And that I can pitch better when I am worked regularly than when I rest four or five days, and regularly is every third day."

I have not studied the Red Sox. I will rely on my own stuff to beat them and the boys are with me. "I am not the whole team. I would never win but for their support, and I will say that frequently they have saved me."

We can win the first game they scheduled yesterday. We drop the first one we will not be beaten until we win the fourth one."

champions, while Brooklyn appeared to have lost their nerve entirely.

Even Cobb Fanned.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Walter Johnson won the second game of the series from Detroit Tuesday, 3 to 0. Johnson struck out ten men in the first five innings, fanning the entire side, including Cobb, in the ninth round. In the last half of the fifth a single, a pass and Foster's double netted Washington two runs. In the eighth Miller's hit batted over Cobb's head for a home run.

Go to Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Four home runs delivered at opportune times swept the Cubs through another double header over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and landed them in fourth place from seventh. The scores were to 3 and 5 to 0. Wildfire Schulte made two of the long distance clouds and accounted for five kills, two in the first game and three in the second. He distributed his four-ply wallop in both combats.

Douglas was sent out to conquer the Reds in the first game, but was recalled in the fifth when the count was three all. Pierce then halted the Reds. Dale went the route for Cincinnati and was lambasted hard in the last rounds. Schneider was forced to swallow another bitter pill in the second game against Hogg, the new Cub pitcher. The home runs by Schulte and Williams decided the fray.

Sox Win Exhibition.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Weaver's double in the tenth inning broke up an exhibition game between the White Sox and the Rail-roads of Toledo by the score of 4 to 3. Even Cobb Fanned.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Walter Johnson won the second game of the series from Detroit Tuesday, 3 to 0. Johnson struck out ten men in the first five innings, fanning the entire side, including Cobb, in the ninth round. In the last half of the fifth a single, a pass and Foster's double netted Washington two runs. In the eighth Miller's hit batted over Cobb's head for a home run.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Four home runs delivered at opportune times swept the Cubs through another double header over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and landed them in fourth place from seventh. The scores were to 3 and 5 to 0. Wildfire Schulte made two of the long distance clouds and accounted for five kills, two in the first game and three in the second. He distributed his four-ply wallop in both combats.

Douglas was sent out to conquer the Reds in the first game, but was recalled in the fifth when the count was three all. Pierce then halted the Reds. Dale went the route for Cincinnati and was lambasted hard in the last rounds. Schneider was forced to swallow another bitter pill in the second game against Hogg, the new Cub pitcher. The home runs by Schulte and Williams decided the fray.

ELEVEN IN "BIG 9" IN ACTION SATURDAY

TEAMS IN THE CONFERENCE SWING INTO ACTION THIS WEEK IN MINOR GAMES.

LATE DOPE ON SQUADS

From All Angles Illinois Looks Good to Do Unexpected and Win Title Twice in Succession.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The battle for the western conference championship will soon be on in real earnest. Practice began on the first day of last week and all the Big Nine teams will play next Saturday. Following the announcement of coaches as to the veterans and promising material they have this season, honors in the western conference colleges appear to rest between Minneapolis and Illinois. Both teams are fortified by veterans and from the first day of practice they will have an advantage over the other institutions in the organization.

Pogue Back at Illinois.

Aside from Captain Watson, Coach Zuppke again will have the services of Harold Pogue, one of the best half backs since the days of Willie Heston. This little player was a factor in all of Illinois' games last year and he is certain to be just as important a cog this season. Bart Macomber, Pogue's running mate, will be on hand again and should be a much better player. Macomber is a valuable man and besides his playing ability, he is a punter and drop kicker of ability. Clark, who also is a good open field runner, will be available, as will Pettit, Squier, and Stewart.

Gophers Look Formidable.

Those who saw the last game Minneapolis played last year are aware of the fact that the Gophers are going to be a strong aggregation. Against Chicago last season, Coach Williams' eleven played a brand of football which would have been hard to beat. The team had been improving with the playing of every contest and it reached the pinnacle of development at the close of the year.

Williams started the season with a team that was not the players were quick to grasp his ideas and all they needed was experience. Having had a year's experience and favored by a well arranged schedule, nothing but a strong aggregation can be figured. Only three members of last year's team will be missed and there is a wealth of material on hand to try for the vacancies.

on the defense and a punter and place kicker of ability. Bierman, half back, will be seen in his old position, while Capt. Rosenthal of last year's team who played center, will be the big loss in the line.

Northwestern will be stronger than usual this season and it may not be at all surprising to see the Purple finish near the top. The Methodists will be handicapped by playing a hard game in the first conference clash, meeting Chicago on Stag field on October 9. A defeat for Coach Murphy's eleven is likely to have a demoralizing effect while a victory would assure a successful season.

Hightower Lost to Purple.

The loss of Hightower, captain, will be felt keenly, while the absence of other members of Hightower's team will not be felt. This year's eleven will be led by Stromberg, center, who is a hard, consistent player. In addition to the captain seven other veterans have reported to Coach Murphy, who has asserted he will have a strong aggregation.

Chicago's prospects cannot be said to be anything but mediocre. The loss of such stars as Dea Jarden, Gray, Stegeman, Kixmiller, and Huntington is a hard blow to Coach Stagg and their places cannot be filled by men of promise working under his commands, but their worth will not be known until they take part in actual contests.

Prospects at Purdue are better than at any time since Andy Smith has been in charge. The Bolshacker

SIDE TALKS

OUTGROWING THINGS.

When you were a child did you ever have a little girl who loved to make that fascinating concoction known as snow ice-cream? Whenever the fresh snow fell, she used to beg her mother to let her make a plate of it. Now that little girl's mother used to let her make as much as she could spare the milk for. But the family was large and milk was scarce, so that was never half so much as the little girl wanted. Like everyone else, the little girl suddenly grew up and found herself in a home of her own. One day the first snow fell and the little girl remembered, "I'm going to make snow ice-cream," she said, "and just think! I can make all I want!"

What Was Left Out of the Ice Cream?

So she mixed the snow and the milk and the sugar and the vanilla and then she tasted it. "It doesn't taste right," she said. "There must have been something else that I used to put in." And she thought and thought, but she couldn't remember what it was, and she never could remember, so she never made it again.

Are you wiser than she? Can you guess what she forgot to put in, reader friend? Robert Louis Stevenson tells us in one of his essays how he loved his toys and hated to give them up. "I shall conform for a little while to the ways of their foolish world," he promised himself, "but as soon as I have made enough money I shall retire and shut myself up among my playthings until the day I die."

But He Never Went Back.

He even selected the little white kitten to witness his return to childhood. "And yet, as the reader has probably anticipated, writes, 'it never lived, it was carried into effect. There was a worm in the bud, a fatal error in the premises.'"

There is a certain sadness about the way we are pushed willy nilly out of our childhood's dreams and desires. And yet, there's this comfort—It's sad to outgrow things, but it would be infinitely sadder not to. To return to Stevenson once more, "Childhood must pass away and then youth, as surely as age approaches. The true wisdom is to be always, seasonable and to change with a good grace in changing circumstances. To love playthings well as a child, to be contented and honorable youth, and to settle when the time arrives into a green and smiling age, is to be a good artist in life and deserve well of yourself and your neighbor."

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

A Friend in Need.

In time of sickness, friendship is displayed as much in that which is not done as in that which is done. A friend is a person who feels privileged to reason with one about one's mistakes and desires. The friend in need is the sickroom is the fellow who can blow in, smile in the face of despair, absorb all the gloom he finds lying about the place, and blow right out again before the patient has time to be tired. He comes in without knocking and departs the same way. He takes it for granted you and your family know enough to know which doctor or what treatment you ought to have. He withholds his advice until you ask for it. His visit is as welcome as a north breeze in dog-days. You really hate to see him leave.

Mrs. Gamp is different. She slips in the back door when she sees the doctor arrive. She gradually works her way toward the sickroom—after the doctor has gone and she breaks in by book or croon for a little time with the patient. In her opinion there is something not quite right about the progress of the case—she believes a change of doctor is good thing now and then. She changes doctors herself once a week or so; she never lets 'em fool her, no siree. The doctors don't know any too much, some of 'em. Now there's Dr. Nipper—they do say he's fine in fever cases. He cured Jennie Soso when all the others had given her up. And besides, he's a friend.

Mrs. Gamp is a very numerous person, and not always for a whole lot of misfortune in the sickroom—she and her "worm" theories. She is a born diagnostician. Her experience extends back to the time of Noah, and what she doesn't know never worries her a little bit.

As one of our readers exploded reeling all the old women and tried stopping me on the street to exclaim, "Why, how dreadfully you look! Are you sick? Why, you're as pale as a sheet. Why don't you get your doctor? They don't know any too much, some of 'em. Now there's Dr. Nipper—they do say he's fine in fever cases. He cured Jennie Soso when all the others had given her up. And besides, he's a friend."

Answer: It is more fattening than some fresh cream is. It all depends upon the purity of the cream. Good ice-cream, next to pure candy, is about the best luxury a skinny woman can afford—or her husband or affianced or friend.

Is ice-cream fattening? I am a 135 pound, 15 year old and weigh 135 pounds. I am only five feet three inches tall and I eat a lot of ice-cream, three dishes a day, and I have gained over ten pounds in two months.

anyway, and nothing can take the blessed memories of this home away; the home where our boy was born, where we have been sad and glad together, and where we feel that we don't remember how we felt to leave our first home? We felt that we should never care for another half so much, and now we feel much more strongly about this one.

"Yes," chimed in Nell, "while we keep the essence of home in our hearts, we can face any future." She smiled through her tears and Dick bent and kissed her.

Sheep as Weather Prophets. Shepherds say that the wool of the sheep furnishes an excellent indication of weather changes. When it is crisp there will be no rain; when it is limp and feels very soft to the touch a storm is imminent.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to be married this coming winter and as I have no folks or home any more I have but very little money—just what I can earn. Now I would like to know what kind of goods or a wedding dress I should have to be neat and plain. I would like to have as nice a dress as possible. I don't know whether I should have some kind of blue silk or white. I am dark, have dark hair and eyes and a dark complexion. Right after the wedding I would wear a dress should I wear?

I would have a white voile, china and have a tulle skirt. Any of these materials would be reasonably inexpensive and soft and pretty in their effect. The white voile would serve best for a little summer dress and would be appropriate for evening parties this winter.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Could you please tell me what causes headaches as I have them nearly every day? I am twelve years old.

(2) I weigh 102 pounds. Will you please tell me what will reduce my weight?

(3) Have your eyes tested and if the trouble is not with them, consult a reliable physician.

(4) Exercise, principally, and moderate eating. Take long walks and play out door games with neighborhood children.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years old and have no children and will never have any on my husband's account. My husband is seven years older than I and very cross. Right after the wedding he started to abuse me and call me vile names.

Before we were married he told me he had enough money saved to start

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. When Doors, Windows and Drawers Stick—Use a candle to rub along the edges. The result is that they slide very easily.

When Using Gas or Electric Irons—Get a five-cent bird cage spring. Hang it either on light fixture or on wall near your iron, so it comes above the ironing board; loop cord through the spring. The spring gives when you iron, also saves wear and tear on cord.

When Peeling Peaches and stone is hard to remove, before peeling cut peach lengthwise of the stone. Make a quick twist and you will be surprised how easily you can remove the stone.

Sure Grease Remover—If grease is not out and hard to get over it thoroughly with common white chalk, and let it remain a few hours. Then brush chalk until it is completely brushed out of the fabric; chalk and grease will entirely disappear.

For Cockroaches—Take two can covers; put plaster of Paris in one and water in other. Lay piece of cardboard as a bridge between the roach and water. The plaster will harden the plaster and roach will die. Also sprinkle kerosene and paper, etc., in cupboard and it will scatter them.

To Dry Corn—Cut corn from cob (do not cook), to each gallon of corn add one cup sweet cream and one cup sugar, mix well, put in pans and put in oven to dry, then put in jars for keeping. This is most delicious.

Canning Vegetables for Soup—Take one dozen ears sweet corn boiled and cut from cob, one quart lima beans, one quart string beans, one quart small onions or fine large ones, quart small onions, one head cabbage, two mangoes (green and red), two bunches celery, four carrots, half peck tomatoes and a little parsley. Boil each vegetable separately until thoroughly done, adding a little salt to each. Put all together, add mangoes chopped fine and parsley. Boil and can like fruit, having jars well sterilized. Get jars upside down in boiling water until water becomes cool. When ready to make soup, boil beef and add canned vegetables to brook one-half hour before serving.

When Preserving Tomatoes—When

preparing tomatoes for preserves, chili sauce or catsup, have a kettle ready into which squeeze the tomatoes quite dry. In making preserves you will find this helps keep them whole. If you are using a food chopper, drain juice into the kettle, then add a little onion and salt, cook for a half hour and seal, either in bottles or jars. In the winter it is very convenient to have your strained tomato juice ready for soups, spaghetti, etc. You will also find your catsup and preserves improved in flavor and they will take much less time to cook.

THE TABLE. Hamburger—This quantity supplies a family of four with a nourishing meal. Put two quarts of water in kettle, add fifteen cents' worth of hamburger steak and one large onion chopped fine. Boil half hour, then add six large potatoes, diced. Cook until potatoes are tender. Salt and pepper to taste. One can also add noodles and green peppers to vary the dish.

Peach-Pepper Salad—Pare and slice six good peaches, sweeten to taste. Wash dry one medium-sized green pepper, remove seeds and white part, slice in circles, mix with the peaches, place in refrigerator until chilled. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise or French dressing. Canned peaches can be used when fresh ones are out of season.

Graham Cracker Cake—One cup sugar, half cup butter, three-fourths cup milk, three eggs, three cups crushed graham crackers, two teaspoons baking powder, half cup chopped walnut meats.

Meringue—Beat the whites very

CHINESE TEXTILE MILL NOW TURNING OUT WOOL AT HIGHER PROFITS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Shanghai, Sept. 29—Acting upon the suggestion of the Minister of Commerce and Agriculture and other advocates of homemade goods for China, one of the large textile factories of Shanghai is now being transformed into a mill for the manufacture of knitting wool. The amount of woolen yarn sold through this port annually is said to be more than $35,000,000 in gold. Shanghai merchants have agreed to push the local yarn. At present the capacity of the mill, which will actually begin work next month, is only one thousand of yards daily. The manufacturers promise to sell a quantity as the heavy wool imported so extensively for use in the cold sections of China. There are forty wholesale agents who deal almost exclusively in woolen products.

UNHAPPY WIFE. Your husband is responsible for the bills you have run. You cannot possibly force him to pay them. I would divorce him if I were you, since you have found life with him such a miserable failure, and live with your parents, a work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am working in an office and have quite a bit of spare time to do fancy work. I have a gentleman friend whom I esteem very highly and I would like to work a state pillow for him to give him just as a token of our friendship. Would this be a proper thing to do? If so, do you think it would be acceptable? I do not intend it to be a birthday present or anything like that. I would like to send it as a surprise to a gentleman friend whom I esteem very highly and I would like to work a state pillow for him to give him just as a token of our friendship. That revealed an avenue of escape. Juanita had not known that these windowless cabins are usually supplied with two doors, and that the one into which the wind does not drive the weather stands open for light on wintry days. Now she, too, rose noiselessly and went out of the close and musty room. It was quite dark out there and she could feel, rather than see, the densely foliaged side of the mountain that loomed upward at the back.

In her brooding she lost account of time. At last she heard a voice slung out from the stile:

"I'm Jim White, an' I'm a-comin' in."

A thick welcome from Fletch McNash followed, and then again silence settled.

After a while, as she sat there on the rock, with her chin disconsolately in her hand and her elbows on her knees, Juanita became conscious of footprints and knew that someone was coming toward her. Then she caught the calm voice which had already impressed her—the voice of the stranger who had brought home the half-helpless householder.

"I reckon we're out of earshot now, I reckon we kin hear speech here; but heed your voice an' talk low."

In the face of such a preface the girl shrank back in fresh panic. She had no wish to overhear private conversations.

She huddled back against the rock and cast an anxious glance about her for a way to escape. Behind her the mountain wall with its junglelike growth, where her feet would sound an alarm of rustling branches and disturbed deadwood. But the men were strolling near her, and to try to reach the house would require crossing their path.

Then the second shadow spoke, and its voice, carried beside the nasal shrillness so common to the hills the tenseness of suppressed excitement.

"That's liable ter be hell ter night."

The girl thought that the quiet stranger laughed, though of that she could not be certain.

"I reckon ye mean concernin' Cal Douglas?"

"That's hit; when I rid outen Peril this afternoon ther jury had done took ther case, an' everybody 'lowed they'd find a verdict afore sundown."

"I reckon"—the taller of the two men answered slowly, and into his softly modulated voice crept something of flinty finality—"I reckon I can tell ye what that verdict's goin' to be. Cal will come clear."

"That hain't ther pint," urged the messenger excitedly. "That hain't why I've rid over hyar like a bat outen hell ter catch up with ye. I was aimin' ter fetch word over ter ther dance, but as I come by hyar I seen yore hoss hitched out thar in ther road, so I lit an' come in. I reckon ye knows that cote an' thet jury. That's yore business, but thet hain't all."

"Well, what's the balance of it? Talk out. What are ye aimin' to tell me?"

"I met up with a feller in Job Heath's blind tiger jest outside Peril. He'd drunk a lot of licker an' he got ter talking mighty loose-tongued an' free."

The girl sickened a little as she felt that her fears were being realized, and one hand went involuntarily up to her breast and stayed there. The young man with the shrill voice talked on impetuously.

"Ever since the trial of Cal Douglas started good old Milt McBriar hain't been actin' like hisself. Him an' Breck Harvey's been stoppin' at ther same hotel in Peril, an' yet Milt hain't peered ter be a bearin' no grudge whatsoever. When ter jury was med up Milt didn't seek ter challenge fellers that everybody knowed was friends of Cal's. Milt didn't even seek ter raise no hell when ther judge ruled favorable ter Cal right along. This feller what I talked ter 'lowed thet Milt didn't keer of Cal come clear."

The listening man once more answered with a quiet laugh. "Do ye 'low that that old raffish snake, Milt McBriar, aims to stand by an' not try ter hang or penitentiary kin of mine for killin' kin of his?" he inquired almost softly.

"That's just hit," the answer came quickly and excitedly. "This feller 'lowed thet Old Milt ain't ter show ther world thet he couldn't git no justice in a cote that 'blonged to Anse Harvey, an' then he aimed ter tend ther own justice fer hisself. He 'lows ter bev hit home-made."

"How is he goin' to fix it?" The question was a bit contemptuous.

"They figger thet when Cal comes clear he'll ride lickety-split, with a bunch of Harvey boys, over hyar ter this dance what's a-goin' forward at ther pint. Some of Milt's fellers aims ter slip over thar, too, an' while Cal's celebratin' they aims ter git him ternight."

"Do they?" The taller man's voice was velvety. "Well, go on. What else?"

"They aims ter tell the world thet they let ther law take hit's co'se fust, but thet Bad Anse Harvey makes a mockery of ther law."

For a moment there was silence, and the quiet voice commenced, ironically: "My God, them fellers lay a heap of deviltry up against Bad Anse, don't they?"

After a moment of silence, through which Juanita Holland was painfully conscious of the quick beat of her own heart, she heard again the unexcited voice of the tall stranger. Now it was the capable tones of a general officer giving commands.

"Did ye give warnin' in Peril?"

"No—I couldn't get to speak with Cal. He was in cote—and seen' as how they didn't figger on raisin' no hell twell they git over hyar—I didn't turn backwads. I come straight through. I 'lowed this was ther place ter fix things up."

"You ride over to the dancin' party. Get the older fellers together. Keep the boys quiet and sober—cold sober. Watch thet old fool, Bob McGreogor. Don't spread these tidings till I get there. If Cal comes over there, tell him to keep outen sight. Nothin' won't break loose before midnight. That's my orders. By God Almighty, I aim to have peace hereabouts just now!"

The speaker's voice broke off and the two men passed out of sight around the corner of the house.

CHAPTER II.

The girl rose and made her way unsteadily to the back door and let herself in. She threw herself on the bed and lay there, rapidly thinking. It was obvious that her absence had not been commented upon. A few minutes later she heard the voice of Mrs. McNash singing out: "You folks kin all come in an' eat," and found herself, outwardly calm, making her way around to the shed addition which served jointly as kitchen and dining-room.

When she entered the place Fletch McNash was already seated, and sagged over his plate with the stupid inertia of dulled senses.

Juanita found herself unaccountably eager to see the tall stranger whose voice had reassured her; who had appeared first as the Samaritan.

Time was precious. Huff, having rung the announcing bell, made his way in through the door to the house. And so it was that Elinor, opening the house door, met him face to face. As she recoiled from him, he closed the door.

"I have brought you a message from Boroday," he said swiftly. "I've been a fool and scoundrel and it's about all up."

Elinor hardly realized what he was saying. The light of horror had hardly died out of her eyes to her, Walter, once her lover, now typified all of suffering and nearness to death that lay in old Hilary's room upstairs.

The first train leaves the city at six o'clock," he said, trying to keep his voice steady. "It is hardly likely they will be out so soon, but under some pretext or other they will search the house this morning."

"How can I leave the house now? Upstairs in father's room?"

"I know," he put in hastily. "I know all about it. Elinor, I am sorry. I am wildly sorry. It's no excuse to say 'was away,' but I was away."

"If I go away," Elinor said, with white lips, "how will they manage about him? The nurse needs so many things, and I—I see that she has them."

Adam leaped into the boy's eyes. "If you care for him like that—what are you going to do about it? Even if he cares for you, you can not marry him," he never found out about you."

"He will never marry me! And—he does know."

The fact that Ward knew the truth about Elinor and the hand he brought back to him their common peril. He thrust aside, for the time at least, his passion and his despair; and calmly directed his energies toward preparing the house for the inevitable search.

So systematic had old Hilary been that there were few papers to destroy. Such of the ledgers as were incriminating he burned in the furnace. Elinor's box of jewels he carried upstairs and placed on the library table. Such settings as had remained in the Country Club raid, after the gems had been taken out, he melted together in old Hilary's crucible and placed the gold and platinum nugget in Elinor's box.

Adam set the safe to a simple combination and closed it. Elinor, for its size, and for the protective wiring buried in its walls, it might have been a family safe, built by a nervous and elderly gentleman living in the country to hold his silver spoons.

It was too late by that time to bury the box as Boroday had suggested. Huff did the next best thing. He buried it carefully in Elinor's garden, under a clump of cypress phlox.

Elinor worked hurriedly, but with hopeless eyes. Her preparations consisted in little more than putting on the clothing in which she meant to travel. In this new life on which she the Chief, eyes ahead in the darkness, was entering she wanted little to remind her of the old. A letter to Hen-

"Well?" said Huff defiantly. "Sit down." Boroday's voice was kind. He went to a closet and got out a bottle of vodka.

"Then did you have anything to eat?"

"I am not hungry."

Nevertheless, Boroday forced on him a little bread and meat.

"Didn't know you were out until tonight," Huff said at last, pushing his plate away.

"Where have you been?"

"I suppose not," he returned bitterly. He added: "If only you will try not to hate me, Elinor."

"I do not hate you. But if he had died—"

Huff came swiftly around the table and taking both her hands in his, held them to his throat with a despairing gesture.

"If I didn't know that it would make you more unhappy," he said slowly, "I'd kill myself today."

"Walter!"

"I'll tell you now. It won't change matters. That's perhaps it. It will change your memory. Ever since I've known you I've had one dream. You were to marry me and I was going to turn straight. I could have done it with your help. But now—"

He dropped her hands and turned away. Elinor watched him wistfully. The one thing he wanted she could give. There could be no compromise between them. It must be all or nothing, and she had given her all to some one else.

In the doorway he turned and looked back at her. His eyes were dead. It was as if he were impressing on his memory every light and shadow on her face; every line of her straight young figure. Then he went out into the dark night of the night that precedes the dawn.

For the first time since his injury Ward's mind was quite clear. He had not been able to sleep, and the nurse had been reading to him. Strange reading, too, for the assistant director of Saint Jude's. The books old Hilary had kept on his bedside still lay there.

Even the nurse, accustomed to many books for many men, was gently outraged.

Ward lay in his bed, his eyes half closed, listening intently. At last the nurse came. "Do you want to read?"

"Why, it's frightful! It's outrageous. It's blasphemous! Do you really think I should read you any more of them?"

Ward smiled feebly.

"If you are afraid of the effect on you."

"Not at all," said the nurse almost sharply, and picked up the book again. Ward lay back on his pillows and listened to the asseverations.

So it was on such literature as this that Elinor had been reared! How fair a plant to have grown thus in the dark! And as the nurse droned on, Ward came to realize how natural and inevitable had been her development. Reared in such soil, what might he himself not have become, and more than that, would he have been one-half so sweet, so tender, so good?

Toward dawn the nurse slept in her chair. Her cap had fallen a little crooked, and the beautiful hand of sleep had touched away the small frowns between her eyes. Plain she was, but kindly and full of gentleness. Ward, lying awake, watched her. She was no longer very young. He thought of the children who should have clung to her broad flat bosom and felt the touch of her tender hand.

Then, because, curiously enough, everything of gentleness and tenderness reminded him of Elinor, his thoughts swung round to her. He closed his eyes and dreamed the dream that had been with him, subconsciously, all the night. To take her in his arms, and to teach her love, teach her infinite love; by showing mercy and forgiveness and great tenderness, to lead her by these. His attribute, to the Christ—this was his dream.

And because it brought hope and healing and great peace, after a time he slept. Elinor, standing alone in the house outside his door, took courage from his even breathing and ventured in. So light was his sleep that she dared not touch him. She knelt very quietly by the bed, and kissed

"You can sell it," she wrote. "Good-by, dear Henriette. I shall never forget you and if ever it is possible, be sure I shall see you again."

The time came, just before dawn, when she and Walter stood again face to face in the library.

Huff was going at once. It was not Boroday's plan that any of them should further incriminate Elinor by accompanying her to the train. At a sound of steps on the stairs, Huff started.

"The nurse going down, probably for ice," she explained.

"It is getting better, isn't it?"

"Yes, but he still suffers at times."

When the steps had died away, Elinor slowly drew off her engagement ring, and held it out to him across the table. Although he was watching her, he made no move to take it, and she laid it down between them on the table.

"I don't think we need talk about it," she said simply. "There is nothing to say, is there?"

"I suppose not," he returned bitterly. He added: "If only you will try not to hate me, Elinor."

"I do not hate you. But if he had died—"

Huff came swiftly around the table and taking both her hands in his, held them to his throat with a despairing gesture.

Indiana Man's Kidney Troubles Disappear

"After suffering many months from kidney trouble," writes W. R. Fox, of Noblesville, Ind., "and after having tried many remedies and prescriptions, I purchased a box of Foley Kidney Pills. They not only did me more good than any other medicine I had ever used, but they positively set my kidneys right. Other members of my family have used same with similar results."

From every state in the Union come unalloyed letters telling of satisfactory results from Foley Kidney Pills. When the kidneys become clogged up, get sluggish, and filter and excrete but a small portion of the poisonous waste matter, the balance remains and circulates through the system, uric acid forms, and swollen, painful joints and muscles are the result.

Foley Kidney Pills cleanse and tone up the kidneys, so that backache, rheumatism, sore muscles, aching joints, annoying bladder disorders and irregularities soon disappear.

To the Business Men of JANESVILLE

When a good salesman goes out after business, he first puts on a clean collar and gets his shoes shined. Then he looks like more business—and he's made a flying start toward getting it.

Likewise, a community can go after more business—and get it. The "clean collar and shiny shoes" of this town are the well-painted stores, the bright, cheery homes, the fresh, clean-looking buildings. The part paint plays in building up local pride cannot be put in figures—but its good effects are recorded on the local merchants' sales sheets. Buy good paint. We recommend the corner of his pillow.

Ward spent his Sabbathal year in Oxford. He had thought to find peace by exchanging one form of activity for another, but with the less arduous duties of his work there he had more time to think. He found the old pain even greater; his restlessness grew on him. In the three years since Elinor's flight he had done many things. He had left Woffingham for New York, and could feel his usefulness now only bounded by his strength.

But the old zest of life was gone. He was restless, heavier in spirit. There had been times when he thought he was forgetting, only to discover, through a stray resemblance, while his heart pounded and his blood raced, that his forgetting was only the numbness of suffering.

Once, on the Strand in London, he came face to face with Boroday. Ward never forgot that meeting, its quick hope which died into the old ache at Boroday's words.

The Older Woman.

Never did woman of mature years have so much attention paid to her wishes along sartorial lines as at the present time. "Anything will do for grandmother" has ceased to be the slogan since the capable middle-aged woman has evinced a desire to wear becoming clothes. Couturiers, always swift to feel the sartorial pulse, are busy making things for the quickened beating of the life of the woman of fifty.

Should Suspend Judgment.

A Detroit woman in suing for divorce because her husband threw money at her. This is one of the cases where the nation should suspend judgment until all the details are made known.—Youngstown Telegram

October is Farmers' month at the California expositions

Then the pedigreed live stock will be on dress parade
Then farm products will be displayed
And rural U.S.A. will be there to enjoy it.

As most city folks come from the country, and all want to get back to the land, October in California appeals to the city man too.

"Santa Fe all the way" this fall to "two fairs for one fare." San Francisco Expo. ends December 4. San Diego Expo. ends December 31. Exposition tickets off sale after Nov. 10. Four daily transcontinental trains on the Santa Fe, including California Limited.

Ask for booklets about the four to the big fairs, Grand Canyon Outings and California Outings.
